Things Will Never Be the Same Again

jj

Living next door's a challenge
Things will never be the same again
I close my eyes and remember
A place in the sun where we used to live
Now Death is in my yard
He's sneaking around out there
Hoping that I step on out
He longs for me
And someday we
Will go Downtown in his carAsk someone who knew me
They will never be the same again
They tell their lies and something dies
Inside us all, it makes me cry
Even though I know that the ship would still sail on Long after I'm gone
Gone
I'll be goneIn this world of wisdom
No one ever really has a clue
They kill their lives
Everyday
With what they say, and what they do
But heaven knows I know
That the ship will still sail on
Long after I'm gone
Gone
I'll be gone
