

Lost

The Cure

I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself In the head of this stranger in love
Holding on, given up
To another under faded setting sun
And I wonder where I am
Could she run away with him?
So happy and so young
And I stare As I sing in the lost voice of a stranger in love
Out of time, letting go
In another world that spins around for fun
And I wonder where I am
Could he ever ask her why?
So happy and so young
And I stare But I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself In the heart of this stranger in love
Given up, holding on
To this other under faded setting sun
And I'm not sure where I am
Would he really turn away?
So happy and so young
And I stare As I play out the passion of a stranger in love
Letting go of the time
In this other world that spins around for one
And I'm not sure where I am
Would she know it was a lie?
So happy and so young
And I stare But I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself In the soul of this stranger in love
No control over one
To the other under faded setting sun
I don't know where I am
Should he beg her to forgive?
So happy and so young

And I stareAs I live out the story of a stranger in love
Waking up going on
In the other world that spins around undone
I don't know where I am
Should she really say goodbye?
So happy and so young
And I stareBut I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I can't find myself
I got lost in someone else

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>