

Something Like Me

Staind

Shards of broken pieces
Shattered on the floor
It's not enough to bleed Tears and angry voices
Cracks around the door
No apologies And every time you say you love me
I just have to stop and catch my breath
How can somebody love something like me If you could only say you're sorry
There is nothing in this world I can't forget
Waiting here for you to set me free Toys and colored pencils
Scattered on the floor
Underneath my feet You're always crying over nothing
You're always wanting more
You never go to sleep But every time you say you love me
I just have to stop and catch my breath
How can somebody love something like me And every time I feel I'm falling
She'll be there to save me from myself
Little angel watching over me Our taxis in the driveway
Our bags are at the door
And it still kills me to leave But every time you say you love me
I just have to stop and catch my breath
How can somebody love something like me And every time I feel I'm falling
You're the one's who saved me from myself
You give me something to believe And with you here
These cracks and tears
Fade away
