

I Swear

Mansions

I swear,
I swear I knew it all along.
When upstairs,
when I knew that you had study hall.

And I cared,
if you talked to the old man in the sky.
So scared,
that you'd let me touch your body and I wouldn't say no.

No, I wouldn't say no.

And I was so full of shit.
Cross my fingers, clench my fist.
Picture myself inside her kiss.
Fall asleep, you hypocrite.

Lipstick,
you looked worse than you ever did.
And I said,
I had climbed so far over it.

So I looked,
for an easier knot to untie.
Someone,
who would let me touch their body and I wouldn't say no.

No, I wouldn't say no.

And I was so full of shit.
Cross my fingers, clench my fist.
Picture myself inside her kiss.
Fall asleep, you hypocrite.

I was the strangest of thieves.
Pick all the locks and then leave,
to go home and then to fantasize about the things,
that I could've had if I opened up that door.

But that's not how I want it anymore.

And I was so full of shit.
Cross my fingers, clench my fist.
Picture myself inside her kiss.
Fall asleep, you hypocrite.
