Theme for Misery

Jason Rubero

Have you ever been so down?
You know what I'm saying
You of furrow and of frown
You with edges fraying

I'm right there with you when you start to drown
Clawing at the millstone as we're sinking down
(In heavy times a day is a ton)
But we can rise from the water on the wings of his hope
We can unlock the chains and cut away the rope
(Or melt the scythe in the twinkling of an eye)

All you people
Gather round
Mayors and prefects
Of Sullentown

No need to be shallow
There's so much depth in this fight
If you find the day's too heavy
Try walking in light

Have you ever been so down?
So down?
