

One More Look at the Night

Andy Gibb

(written by Andy Gibb)

Touching a thousand dreams, feeling your memories

I guess I've never been more on my own

And the thought of you makes me cry

'cause you made me feel like sunshine

There's a danger, you ain't forever

Watching the memory die One more look at the

One more look at the night

One more look at the only women I've ever loved

And it's you

Give me one more reason to keep believing

this dream of you holding me tight

'cause you were ev'rything

But you go taking living your own way

Taking the dream that was mine

Maybe we should have known, we let it slip away

Now I just sit in the dark all alone

And the thought of you makes me cry

'cause you made me feel like sunshine

I'm a stranger

You don't even know me

Taking the sun from my eyes One more look at the

One more look at the night

One more look at the only women I've ever loved

And it's you

Give me one more reason to keep believing

this dream of you holding me tight

We had ev'rything and I need you

Need to be near you, baby, we can't let it die

One more look at the

One more look at the night

One more look at the only women I've ever loved

And it's you

Give me one more reason to keep believing

this dream of you holding me tight

One more look at the

One more look at the night(fade out)
