

Crashing Down

Trail of Tears

Crashing down from divine disgrace Hanging on with a bitter restraint
They never seemed to care that your hope was lost once more
They never seemed to care that your mind was turned to stone Let your conviction die in their sea of lies Treasure me `cause I am the only hope you'll ever see Treasure me `cause I am the one who'll heal you of this disease They've come to take you and drag you down to where your fear becomes their ally They have the power to bend the shape of mankind's logic into despair They'll let indecency establish itself in the lack of solid consent
