Hardest Part

Julia Price

Itâ€™s five oâ€™clock in the evening
I havenâ€™t moved from my seat and My mindâ€™s just circling you
I canâ€™t stop thinking

I told you all the things I needed
Even though I knew you wouldnâ€™t give in
And now Iâ€™m wondering where you are

(CHORUS)
But the hardest part is the breaking of my heart
â€˜Cause I sew it together every single night
But when I wake in the morning the stitches are untied
This stubborn little thing donâ€™t wanna heal

La la la la la la la la la la la la La

And then my mind keeps replaying
The things I wish you were saying
Oh to open up my door and find you
Fighting for my love

But you just keep moving backwards
And I just stand there asking for more, more
But never getting it

(CHORUS)
But the hardest part is the breaking of my heart
â€˜Cause I sew it together every single night
But when I wake in the morning the stitches are untied
This stubborn little thing donâ€™t wanna heal

So why do I go wherever you go?
I follow you.
Itâ€™s tug-of-war between my heart and what I know

(CHORUS)
But the hardest part is the breaking of my heart
â€˜Cause I sew it together every single night
But when I wake in the morning the stitches are untied

This stubborn little thing donâ€™t wanna heal
