Raindrops

Martin Jondo

[[Chorus:]]
Raindrops pouring down my window and they remind me of teardrops I shed on my pillow I said raindrops pouring down my window and they remind me of teardrops I shed on my pillowThat morning when I woke up it was raining cats and dogs the sky was covered so grew and I knew something was wrong but I couldn't couldn't figure it out what depressed my little little soul, Lord until I got that message which was freezing my blood and soul, heh she was up, up and gone with a brother, brother though she told she woulda never, never, never, never, never but the time has told the truth and I'm the stupid fool who feels blue, heh [[Chorus]]The tide was high the tide was low some nights I was lonely some nights I was in love the seasons they oh they passed by still I felt we're living just a dirty, dirty lie but we kept it on that hurtful game Lord it was a shame, a shame, a shame 'cause we were young young to see that the things we wanted that they couldn't be and our untouchable love now it was gone, gone, gone, gone away you were grabbing for more and I was playing the fool again and[[Chorus]] So I shed tears and tears and tears and they passed by the years, the years until I heard a heavenly call to let go evrything and just fall, fall, fall into love with loneliness which coulda never hurt me as bad, as bad as all the years that we've been through darlin I am go no more I love you[[Chorus]]
