

Traveler in Time

Blind Guardian

The Morning Sun of Dune
The Morning Sun of DuneThe holy war's Waiting for
The morning sun
The morning sun
The morning sun
The morning sun of Dune
There's no tomorrow
The apparition of this land and it's dream
Makes me feel I've seen it before
I can taste there's life
Everywhere you can find
In the desert of my life
I see it again and againAnd again, again, again, again
Dark tales has brought the Dijahd
Like whispering echos in the wind
And I'm a million miles from homeTraveler in Time
Knowing that there's no rhymeThe morning sun is near
First light of dawn is here
The morning sun is near again
The Fremmen sing that Their kingdom will come
And I'm the leading one
Battlefields on our crusade
Filled with Sardokaur's
Killing machines crying
In raising fear they're hiding
Where do we go now?
So where is the way?
When I'm a million miles from homeTraveler in Time
Knowing that there's no rhymeThe morning sun I feel
All pain and sorrow
The apparition of my words in these days
Makes me feel I've told them before
All my plans will come true
I'll control destiny
In the desert of my life
I've seen it again and againBy my dreams I must find a way
To stop the raging war

I've to choose now
I will leave
My body and seek
And time will stand still
When I've to leave
My body and find
A way back to the world I love
When I'm a million miles from home
Traveler in Time
Knowing that there's no rhyme

Songwriters

OLBRICH, ANDRE/KUERSCH, HANS JUERGEN

Published by Lyrics © Warner/Chappell Music, Inc. Song Discussions is protected by U.S. Patent 9401941. Other patents pending.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>