

Every Lasting Scar

Hatebreed

Hard rain pours down on the concrete seeps in deep below
Cold screams of the city are heard through the walls of every home
Most seek for a deeper meaning beyond their daily woes
Most see nothing more than black clouds, it's all that they know
We become our scars if we let them
But all that we truly need is out there for the taking
We scream every word, it's brought us together
Every lasting scar reminds us how we got here
We scream every word, it's brought us together
Every lasting scar shows what it's taken to be who we are
Some dwell into emptiness, the hurt they claim is real
Been let down now it's meaningless, they find ways to conceal
Never to be seen again until it's all too late
And if we don't learn from it all we'll repeat the same mistakes
We become our scars if we let them
But all that we truly need is out there for the taking Every lasting scar shows us what it's taken to be who we are
We scream every word, it's brought us together
Every lasting scar reminds us how we got here
We scream every word, it's brought us together
Every lasting scar shows what it's taken to be who we are
We scream every word, it's brought us together
Every lasting scar shows us what it's taken to be who we are
