The Enemy

Roy Harper

We are soldiers from a different world
Both her and I
We fight the shadow doppelgÃ¤nger
Of the shady passer-by
The lads go out drinking
The girls keep an eye
But no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky

The same dark enemy will come and go
With the changing of the tide
Through the mist between the to and from
In the minds on either side
The lads go out drinking
While the girls try to keep an eye
But no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky

The enemyâ€™s been landed
A hundred aeons now
Heâ€™s married to the queen of the machine
Who wouldnâ€™t hesitate
To sell the details of your soul
To the brutal inquisition magazine

The lads go out drinking
While the girls keep an eye
But no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky

He feels my collar on the slightest little whim
She tries to shield me from the harm
But itâ€™s inevitably down to me or him

In the eye of such a storm
The lads go out drinking
While the girls keep an eye
But no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky

We donâ€™t live in our own village any more
Metropolis in home
Where the cut-purse and his wolves are at the door
And wildest politicians roam
The lads go out drinking
While the girls try to keep an eye
But no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky

The enemyâ€™s been landed
A hundred aeons now
Heâ€™s married to the queen of the machine
Who wouldnâ€™t hesitate
To sell the details of your soul
To the brutal inquisition magazine

We are soldiers from a different world
Both her and I
We fight the shadow doppelgÃ¤nger
Of the shady passer-by
The lads go out drinking
The girls try to keep an eye
But no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky
Yeah no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky
no oneâ€™s on duty
This side of the sky

Lyrics submitted by Maria S.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/