

Same Skies (Acoustic Version)

The Glass Child

A Sunday night at a parking lot I'm holding on for the things we lost

I said it loud:

"will I never see you again?" I stood there long after he was gone got nowhere to go I was left alone

The sun was rising once again I'll hold on to thing untold

CHORUS
I will go now and every day will be our morning to bury all the things gone wrong
And I will keep my eyes on my calling and try to never do you wrong If you find the answers promise to give them all the life you've got I will think of you in the darkness when the sky is all we've got

VERSE
The days go by and the moon keeps howling

I sing to the sky for another dawning

Goodbyes have never felt so wrong I'm too young to die, must live and try

The ode to god was never right I'll stick to you when things get rough but I'll go on, I'll ponder on

CHORUS
I will go now
and every day will be our morning
to bury all the things gone wrong
And I will keep my eyes on my calling try to never do you wrong

If you find your answer promise to give it all the life you've got
I will think of you in the darkness
when the sky is all we've got

OUTRO
I'll go back to the parking lot a serenade for the things we lost

I understand, I will never see you again The years go by and I keep my truth
I look to the sky to remember you Hoping some nights you do to Lyrics provided by <https://damnyrics.com/>