

One Minute More

Moddi

"One step, you're just one step from perfection" she held out her hand and so life spreads from fingertips and through my veins, a beast is born within a man and it whispers of all I've ever hoped for and everything that is wrong slowly now all the words add up and somehow they crack and slip from my tongue and as if singing a psalm I am down on my knees I am singing for love from the top of my lungs but the louder I cry the less I believe that this moment we're in will be more than just now silently I'm replacing what she lacks with the things that I love and though I know I might be torn all around the edges behind her perfect shell's a rotting soul so incomplete but wholer still if I am able to just let her go and if this is the end then at least it was worth it 'cause I swear it was love or something just so and I know love will come to the one who deserves it I'll try closing my eyes and give it one minute more but I'm not of your kind someone as stupid as me should be easy to find so I will treat you like statistics until it drains this love from me

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>