

Tux On

Marillion

Tux on, tux on, tux on, tux on, tux on He has eyes down at the bingo on that lucky Friday night
The match was rained off Saturday but the panel came in bright
And on Sunday your mates were toasting you
With champagne down the pub
And on Monday you went to London to pick the check up with your mum You had a tux on, you had a tux on
The first time you had a tux on, lucky man There's a photo on the mantelpiece, when you bought your first guitar
And your girlfriend came to see you when you were the rising star
You knew your luck was holding when you filled the local hall
The first time and the last time that you thought you had control You had a tux on, lucky man, you had a tux on
You got a tux on, tux on Now you're touring stadiums, you've let it go too far
Standing with your manager, your back to every bar
Burning all your credit cards, chopping out the pain
Crowding into toilets with a host of your new-found friends You got a tux on, nothing's changed, you got a tux on
Lucky man with a tux on, you're still the same with a tux on It was eyes down in the parlor, they prayed it wouldn't rain
A brother pulled his cuffs down to hide the blue-black vein
His razor'd more than lines out, they found him just too late
The final performance, the main man lies in state With a tux on, look at him now with a tux on
The last time with a tux on, take him away with a tux on Somewhere in a tenement, in a well-thumbed magazine
Someone finds a photograph that triggers of a dream
The uniform that symbolizes the comfortable life
He's always known his luck's in, but now he's found the drive He's got a tux on, look at him now with a tux on He's gonna get one with a tux on, free admission with a tux on Get it anyway with a tux on He's got a tux on, the easy way with a tux on, tux on
