Safety Pin Explanation

Elliott

and i hear the stars have fallen he finally rests his eyes on the contract he finally laid his eyes on her red dress he finally lost his eyes in the contrast the steel rides up again he finally his line on the man he finally claims his ties on the land he finally rests his eyes on the contract he finally lost his eyes in her red dress he finally lost his eyes in the contract he slowly runs his eyes through her red dress the steel rides up again he finally lays his line on the man he finally lays his ties on the land he finally lost his eyes on the contract to feel the same and i hear the counselors on his way to make this cancer change and i hear the counselor on his way and i feel tip top and full of shame i feel the counselors on his way and i feel the stars will change and i feel the counselors on his way to fill the contract fill it with these days feel the contrast fill it with these days with a breath it tenses with a breath you tense on me feel that contract a portrait in the light of same if this is alive keep me honestly recognize im a man recognize what i could have been

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/