So Sorry Girl

Sundy Best

I don't wanna be somebody searching
I'm a little lost right now
And someone's always hurting
And it's always my fault somehow
No, I don't know what tomorrow brings
But I know that there'll be pain
Your memories burns like a cigarette
Or a needle to my veins
Oh, I'm sorry that I let you down
Giving you the same old run-around
No, I don't know why I do the things I do
I'm so sorry, girl, for ever losing you
Sometimes I sit and wonder
Is it ever really there?
Was it something we just made up?
Was it an imaginary pair?
Or was it just a daydream
Of what we sometimes are?
The thought of us shoots through my head at night
And it makes me see the stars
Oh, I'm sorry that I let you down
Giving you the same old run-around
No, I don't know why I do the things I do
I'm so sorry, girl, for ever losing you
I guess that you could say
That I was running half blind
Like driving at night with one headlight
Oh, I'm sorry that I let you down
Giving you the same old run-around
No, I don't know why I do the things I do
I'm so sorry, girl, for ever losing you
