

Cinderblock

One-Eyed Doll

Locked in my room
Hiding under the bed
Can't seem to quiet the screaming in my headDaddy is drinking
 He's angry again
 Crawl out the window
 He'll be out cold by tenWalking down town
 Singing songs to myself
Wishing that I could be somebody elseA man on the sidewalk who's been there since dawn
Asks for a dime and he sings me this songThis town isn't big enough for the two of us
 This town isn't big enough for the two of us
 This town isn't big enough for the two of us
 So goodbyeBack at the trailer
 It's quiet and dim
 Daddy's asleep
 With a bottle of ginSee my reflection
 In the mirror again
 Bruises and scars
How it hurts to be tenThis town isn't big enough for the two of us
 This town isn't big enough for the two of us
 This town isn't big enough for the two of us
 So goodbyeFrom the shelves that he made
 I take a cinderblock
 Lift it up high
 Such a heavy rockAbove daddy's head
 I hold my liberty
 As I let it drop,
This is what I singThis town isn't big enough for the two of us
 This town isn't big enough for the two of us
 This town isn't big enough for the two of us
 So goodbye
