

No One Cares

Geraldine Quinn

I'm so tired
All riled up, I can taste the winter
I would shut up if I thought that it mattered
That's what it feels like when you're stitched into this skin
I feel stuck and no one thinks something's missing
Something's missing
No one cares, no one listens
Screaming words that you fake hearing
No one cares, no one listens anymore
No one listens anymore
Anymore, anymore, anymore
My eyes burn as I bury how I'm feeling
Close my eyes, it's my life that I've been stealing
If it's so right why do I feel a sense of longing?
I had it all and yet I thought that something's missing
Something's missing
No one cares, no one listens
Screaming words that you fake hearing
No one cares, no one listens anymore
No one cares, no one listens
Screaming words that you fake hearing
No one cares, no one listens anymore
So paranoid, I've been hiding from the sun
I'm tired of being afraid of everything and everyone
I'm so tired
No one cares, no one listens
Screaming words that you fake hearing
No one cares, no one listens anymore
No one cares, no one listens
Screaming words that you fake hearing
No one cares, no one listens anymore
No one cares, no one listens
Screaming words that you fake hearing
No one cares, no one listens anymore
