Supergirl

Minor Majority

These are all the things I never got to say to you
Things I don't even tell my friends
This is a song that I've been humming on for way too long
The hidden track left at the end
You're such a snob
But you're such a supergirl
And any day now they'll know
You're such a snob
But when reconsidering
You've got all the things I want
These are the streets we walked, the memories we're leaning on
These are the images I've saved
These are the girls I should have left alone, I'd been better off
This is where I am today
You're such a snob
But you're such a supergirl
And any day now they'll know
You're such a snob
But if you get through to me
Then I won't have to walk alone
This is the T-shirt I've been carrying for all these years
It's got your picture on the front
This is the pride I take in wearing it, and shearing it
With everyone who needs to know
You're such a snob
But you're such a supergirl
And any day now it'll show
You're such a snob
But you're such a supergirl
I think it's time you sang along
This one's for rock'n'roll, for magazines, for radio
For all the times it knocked me ut
This one's for showing up when everyone thought you were gone
This one's for never giving Fup
You're such a slob
But you're such a supergirl
And now it's time to carry on
You're such a slob
But you're such a supergirl

And here's a heart that you've won

Solo (as verse)

You're such a slob
But you're such a supergirl
And any day now you'll know
You're such a slob
But you're such a supergirl
Those whom the gods love grow young
Those whom the gods love grow young
