

Rearranged

Louie LeClaire

Just think about it

Just think about it Lately I've been skeptical, silent when I would used to speak

Distant from all around me who witness we feel and become weak

Life is overwhelming, heavy is the head that wears the crown

I'd love to be the one to disappoint you when I don't fall down But you don't understand, when I'm attempting to explain

Because you know it all and I guess things will never change

But you might need my hand when falling in your hole

Your disposition, I'll remember when I'm letting go Of you and me, we're through an' rearranged It seems that you're not satisfied, there's too much on your mind

So you leave and I can't believe all the bullshit that I find

Life is overwhelming, heavy is the head that wears the crown

I'd love to be the one to, disappoint you when I don't fall down But you don't understand when I'm attempting
to explain

Because you know it all and I guess things will never change

But you might need my hand when falling in your hole

Your disposition, I'll remember when I'm letting go Of you and me, we're through and rearranged

You and me, we're through and rearranged

You're no good for me, thank God its over You make believe

That nothing is wrong until you're cryin'

And you make believe

That life is so long until you're dyin' You make believe

That nothing is wrong until you're cryin', cryin' on me

You make believe

That life is so long until you're dyin', dyin' on me You think that everybody is the same

I don't think that anybody is like you

You think everybody is the same

I don't think that anybody is like you Just think about it

You'll get it
