

Ghost Town

Strung Out

Sunday morning freak show someone forgot to pull the plug out on this place a long time ago the angels, the don't come around and the gods, they run like devils chasing secrets no one talks about down avenues of glitter lights and pain I've been looking for a place to leave my troubled thoughts behind but trouble's growing all around It's all I seem to find in this land of make believe toxic February breeze cemetery boulevards and neon signs that say you've come too far I don't want to be the one to say I know exactly what I'm headed for some things in life I think you shouldn't know If I'm on a one way street to nowhere at least I made it there to say I don't regret a single thing that I have done
