The Climb

Battlecross

This chaos is just a ladder
Some attempt to climb and fail
Never again tempted to try they break and fail
Cracking under pressure
Clinging to your vain illusions
When escaping death is your only motivationYou will never move faster than all the whips that are set upon your back
Marching over the corpses of the defeated, claiming my victoryActions speak volumes of what your worth in life
The climb is all there is, all you need to surviveDo not choose your path just out od desperation
Face your enemies do not now to their will
There is no such thing as courage without fear
Your sentiments are meaningless
When the end of life draws near
Break beyond the boundaries of existence
The point of no return
Climb over the bodies of your victims
Determination tearing down the boundaries like paper walls
