

Teach Him Well

Antiskeptic

If he could breathe then he would feel so well
And not locked up inside this prison cell
Another accident complacency
And now he questioning a truth believed
A precious memory from so long ago

Push come to shove and now he won let goAnd he sees this world through cellophane eyes

It almost like he can feel my liesSo please youe not alone
I caught him out in the freezing snow
Ie been his friend
It hard to tell

Youe hardly old enough, so teach him wellIn agony a mother seeking help
A son astray as far as I can tell
A month is gone without a word to speak
Afraid and lonely on this windy street
Saving face and shame from strangers by

The choice is made and only God know whyAnd he sees this world through cellophane eyes

It almost like he can feel my liesSo please youe not alone
I caught him out in the freezing snow
Ie been his friend
It hard to tell

Youe hardly old enough, so teach him wellSo please don leave it your eyes, theye deceiving you
For all eternity, the truth revealed in you

For all eternity, the truth revealed in you (repeat)So please youe not alone
I caught him out in the freezing snow
Ie been his friend
It hard to tell

Youe hardly old enough, so teach him well
Teach him well.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damlyrics.com/>