Everything Works Out in the End

Kodaline

I never seen it coming, i couldn't read the signs
And now i know that it means nothing, but you are always on my mind
I got tricked into believing, you were the only one to leave
But the truth can be deceiving and i was just too young to seeYou told me everything works out in the end,
everything works out in the end
You told me everything works out in the end, everything works out in the endYou got me tricked on the water, cause i never learnt to swim and now i know that it's all over
We better learn to start againYou told me everything works out in the end, everything works out in the end
You told me everything works out in the end, everything works out in the end
Mmmh
