Dragonfly

Paul Weller

She's like a dragonfly with no fire laughing us with no intent to bound She's like a horse with no rider all the space without the chase search within she's like a sea with no waves all the drift upon the shiver wayEven the light of a silvery moon laugh at the life that's inside of you send in shadows under the trees about to the wind who's voice she speaksShe's in the wolf with no people all the scope without the whole holy up She's like a dragonfly with no fire laughing us with no intent of bound.
