

Ball & Chain

Murder By Death

When I fall, I fall hard
My body bruises at your touch
My ankles bear these lover's scars
The weight is heavy but necessary
You'll never change, my ball and chain
My ball and chain you will remain
You've always been my ball and chain
She lingers somewhere I cannot find
My lover stands upon the shore
It's me she should be waiting for
The distance binds us locked in twain
You will remain my ball and chain
My ball and chain you will remain
You've always been my ball and chain
