

The Healer

Danielle Prou

He lay on the floor, and stared, at the ceiling
And he, wondered what things, that he ought, to be feeling
So he, walked out the door, and down the street
Looking for a similar, sufferer, to meet

He met a girl with vacant eyes

And she said take, my pain away
My heart abandoned me, and left a naked shell
Now my demons wanna, drag me down, down too

Often she'd lament, "We're all sad, and depressed
And we don't like how we look, when we get, undressed"

Terror filled those hooded eyes

And she begged take, my pain away
Purpose abandoned me, and left a useless shell
Now my demons wanna, drag me down, down too

She looked at him with stark sincerity
He handed her, his cold black heart

He said I'll take, your pain away
Just please don't abandon me, I've got nobody else
I won't let your demons drag you down
No I won't let your demons drag you down, down too
Down too
