

Some Things Don't Matter

Ben Watt

This boy breezes in from the South West
This boy sees his days in the Middle East
This boy eased his way up the silver Thames
But what is that, when this boy, he needs love, he needs love

This boy thought he had found his girl
This boy ought to have kept that girl
This boy caught up in the wheels of fate
This boy deserves, oh, this boy, he needs love, an everlasting love
He needs love

Oh this boy, he knows how to feel,
The blood in his heart runs strong as cochineal
This boy only knows what's real
So give him love, an everlasting love
Give him love

Oh this boy, he's got a heart of gold
And gold's the most precious thing you could ever hold
And if his heart is made of that, what need more be told?
Just give him love, an everlasting love
Give him love

This boy breezes in from the South West
This boy sees his days in the Middle East
This boy eased his way up the silver Thames
But what is that this boy deserves, oh, he needs love, an everlasting love
Give him love

Oh give it to him, he needs it now
An everlasting, everlasting, everlasting, everlasting love
