Home

Nichole Nordeman

The bright are the stars that shine
In somebody else's sky
Green is the grass that grows some place differentMore possibilities
More than You offered me
More than I care to see from a distanceI was certain that the truth would be
In a place that kept eluding me
But every stone turned and unturned again
Would only serve to prove
That I never had to move to find YouAnd You will always be
The only love I'll ever know, home
And You have made for me
The only place I'll ever go, home, homeGod, for the shameless pride
The times when I rolled my eyes
To laugh at simplicity, show me mercyKnowing what I know now
It's hard to imagine how
I could feel anything but unworthyAnd the mystery of Your love for me
Is not as hidden as it seemed to be
Should have known then when You said to me
"Seek and you will find"
It was right here all the timeAnd You will always be
The only love I'll ever know, home
And You have made for me
The only place I'll ever go, home, homeI believe in the quest and the journey
I believe that the answers come in time
Where we begin is where we arriveAnd You will always be
The only love I'll ever know, home
And You have made for me
The only place I'll ever go, homeYou will be and You will always be
The only love I'll ever know, home
And You have made for me
The only place I'll ever go, home, home

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/