

Looking for a Place to Land

Justin Townes Earle

I been circling
The side of my hands
Reserves are running low and Iâ€™m looking for a place to land â€™Cause far too young I learned to fly
So I should know now as a man
How to come back down now
Iâ€™m looking for a place to land now

Iâ€™ve crossed oceans
Fought freezing rain and blowing sand
Iâ€™ve crossed lines and roads and wondering rivers
Just looking for a place to land
Now Iâ€™ve climbed the heights most werenâ€™t meant to understand now
Iâ€™m flying low
And Iâ€™m looking for a place to land â€™Cause these once proud engines
They choke up now and then
Now, now Iâ€™m starting to lose my faith
But still looking for a place to land

So tower, tower please come in Where will my engines give out?
When?

How long ago
Did I start my decent?
And if I put down here
Will I ever fly again?

And a voice said seeker come back
Lonely seeker come in
If we can just take it slow
I know I can bring you in
And I touched down and couldnâ€™t find my feet
But you held me up till I could stand
Now I never fly alone
Iâ€™ve got a place to land
