

Adventures in Taxidermy

Disconnect

Taking pride in their work, meticulous hands
Make life from death and devious plans
What cruel memory spurned him to this?
Unforgivable words he couldn't dismiss
Dark trophies displayed for pleasure
The secrets are a choice
Souvenirs no one can measure
Providing rage with a voice
Tailor of depravity, sculptor of sublime
Retaining self-respect, you've committed no crime

Look around at what you've done
Not enough to have your fun
Tomorrow comes despite today
All your debts, soon be paid

It's time to balance all accounts
Give me your sins to be renounced
What happened here is not a shame
He knows you need someone to blame
He'll take the fall like every time before

What's the cost of love gone wrong?
At least an arm and leg
His eyes are on deeper details
The subtle parts don't belong
A finger here, a femur there
No one can say for sure
Pieces of his love reside
In every bit of work

Over time she wore him down
A thousand little knives
Digging out his self-esteem
Putting on her crown
What better way to show her shame
Preserving her this way?
As part of every animal
She used to curse each day

It's time to balance all accounts
Give me your sins to be renounced
What happened here is not a shame
But you need someone to blame
Return to this in times of need
But of my choice you must take heed
It's not enough to say you will
But chances are you'd likely kill
It's time to balance all accounts
Give me your sins to be renounced
He'll take the fall like every time before

Rain, rain go away
Cut & sew another day
Rain, rain go away
Love is on display

Lyrics submitted by Disconnect.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnllyrics.com/>