

The End

Deviates

Could it be, is this the end?
I've seen it coming from a far and I welcome it like a friend
A lost love, like a bright light
The direction I'm lacking is leading me So far I haven't seen a reason to be
I've lost count of the shackles that bind me
I'm not alone, I don't that comforting
One more time it's my turn to make amends I make my own rules
I'm sure tomorrow I'll break them again
It's getting easy to excuse my mistakes
I'll walk this line until my conscience abandons me Times when you tell me that you wish you could die
And then you give me shit for even trying to be a friend
There's no question
I'd take your place in the light and give this darkness to you
