Stolen

Jason Gray

Nobdy wishes for this
Nobdy's looking for heartache
But I know sometimes that's just how it goes
I wasn't asking for easy
I didn't want the hard way either
But I guess that's what you thought I needed mostIf my life never would've got broken
Then my hands never would've been open
And my heart never would've been stolen
But your love came to me at my lowest
And I've been sining ever since that moment
Hallelujah my heart's been stolenIn the middle of it
I couldn't see your reasons
So I guess I questioned what I was worth
But you saw my heart as a jewel
And you broke in like a thief and showed me
That you'd do anything to make me yoursIf my life never would've got broken
Then my hands never would've been open
And my heart never would've been stolen
But your love came to me at my lowest
And I've been sining ever since that moment
Hallelujah my heart's been stolenSometimes you let us get broken down
Busted and bruised from the inside out
So you can build us up again
Sometimes you let us get broken down
Lost in the dark right before we're found
So you can take us home againIf my life never would've got broken
Then my hands never would've been open
And my heart never would've been stolen
But your love came to me at my lowest
And I've been sining ever since that moment
Hallelujah my heart's been stolenSometimes you let us get broken down
Busted and bruised from the inside out
So you can build us up again
Sometimes you let us get broken down
So you can take us home again
Hallelujah my heart's been stolen
Hallelujah my heart's been stolen
