Skin Deep

Chris Crocker

This attraction only to appearance Becoming your religion, looks are everything The only thing that means something to you Satisfaction only on the surface Your eyes are always focused Go on and let it show that There is no exception to the rule So fill the empty space With another pretty face You're skin deep, skin deep No one will ever be perfect in your eyes You're skin deep, skin deep Only scratching the surface for your prize First impressions are over in an instant You make your decision before you speak a word You end, you search the page already turned Every conquest filled with disappointment Lacking any substance Now you're out of words The lines are blurred you're never gonna learn So fill the empty space With another pretty face You're skin deep, skin deep No one will ever be perfect in your eyes You're skin deep, skin deep Only scratching the surface for your prize You're skin deep, skin deep No one will ever be perfect in your eyes You're skin deep, skin deep Only scratching the surface for your prize Look, all your life for beauty this fine So rare so hard to find Look, all your life for beauty this fine Never mind what's inside You're skin deep, skin deep No one will ever be perfect in your eyes You're skin deep, skin deep Only scratching the surface for your prize
