

Your Baby Doesn't Love You Anymore

The Carpenters

Just take some loneliness and add a tear or two
Throw in some emptiness, mix 'til you're bluer than blue
Keep it all under cover next to your Broken dreams when you're through
Then you'll know how I sit alone and cry
As the nights go by, makes you want to die
'Cause your baby doesn't love you anymore
Your baby doesn't love you anymore
You try to make believe it doesn't bother you
For your own sake believe you'll make it through
Just make a vow every morning
That today you will change your point of view
But it's all a game that you play in vain
And you live in pain 'cause it's very plain
When your baby doesn't love you anymore
Your baby doesn't love you anymore, give it up
And there's nothin' that you can do
But just break down and cry, it's over for you
When your baby doesn't love you anymore
Your baby doesn't love you anymore
Your baby doesn't love you anymore
Your baby
