

Topless Dancer

Noah Gundersen

If you lived in the shadow of the mountain, would you notice when the mountain was gone?

If you played in the sparkling fountain, would the drought seem twice as long?

If that night you slept with strangers in thier houses,

In the morning sang a traveling song, would you feel a little bit stronger when they were gone?

She sang to me the rythm of Autumn,

It was there that I found my space

In the search for the perfect Madonna

To bear the burden of amazing grace

I found her as a topless dancer, making a mess of the place

She took no questions and gave no answers,

She just sang:

"Hold tight, dont leave the light on for me,

'cause I just might cut myself loose and go free."

I hope you see the topless dancer in me.

I learned to ask the lord for forgiveness,

before I learned to forgive myself

So I wore myself thin as a window,

And on my trophies on the shelf

When I woke up in the morning from a good, good dream,

I felt the burden of unspeakable guilt

I washed the milky white stain from my bed sheet not praying for help

So to the priests and the prophets who say our bodies are godless oh tell me what the hell does that mean?

I hope you see, I hope you see

I hope you see the topless dancer in me.
