

Hallowed Land

Paradise Lost

You'd love to be so far away
It's not a long way to go, it's gonna end in your pain
Greet open handed stranger, create the turmoil, you're not sane
I want the last one to go the embers will revive, so stay You want to live a lifetime each and every day You've struggled before, I swear to do it again
You've told it before till I
Until I'm weakened and sore
Seek hallowed land, seek hallowed land You'd love to see right through my veins
The pale reflection tells all, predomination's sustain
Crawl over land or mountain in sight the ultimate escape
A silhouette subsiding, enticed, unable to relate You want to live a lifetime each and every day You've beckoned before, you'll never do it again
You've prayed here before
Who are the prayers for Seek hallowed land, seek hallowed land Begone the fools that lead me, I need not to know
Accept reclining spirit, I need to endure
You try to live a lifetime each and every day
In this short time of promise, you're a memory
