I Cry Real Tears

Lace

You ought to be ashamed of yourself
The way you talk down to me
Oh baby, didn't anybody ever teach you
To act more respectfullyI'm telling you that I'm only human too
Don't you realize? Look at my face
What do you see in my eyes
When a part of me just dies?I cry real tears, I have real fears
I've got a heart that's beating inside
Sometimes it breaks and when it aches
My eyes cry real tearsYou treat me like you think I'm made of stone
Like when I'm cut, I don't bleed
Oh baby, don't you know that I'm just flesh and bone?
So what do you want from me?I'm telling you that I'm only human too
Don't you realize? Look at my face
What do you see in my eyes
When a part of me just dies?I cry real tears, I have real fears
I've got a heart that's beating inside
Sometimes it breaks and when it aches
My eyes cry real tearsThere's something called the golden rule
Someday you'll wish you followed it more
You've been a fool
My love is truer than any love you will find
But I'm worth so much more and so is my timeI cry real tears, I have real fears
I've got a heart that's beating inside
Sometimes it breaks and when it aches
My eyes cry real tearsI cry real tears, I have real fears
I've got a heart that's beating inside
Sometimes it breaks and when it aches
My eyes cry real tearsEvery little teardrop
That falls from my eyes
Falls for you, baby
You ought to be ashamed of yourself
