Rambling Love-Child

Pat Boardman

Rambling Love Child

I have found a place to grow into,
I've found the roots and feelings of my lost and lonely soul;
You've got knowledge and no one can touch you -
You're heading for your goal
Like a patch of lightning that can split a family tree
You became a burning shadow, you're a lot like me.

Rambling love child, don't leave me behind...
Rolling 'cross the fields beyond the borderline.
Since you went wild, it ain't been the same 'round here,
I miss your wide-eyed smile
and I sit up nights wishing that you'd reappear.

Time got frozen as I woke up this morning,
I splashed my face with water and the sunlight burned my mind;
Moved to every corner, I might be right in guessing
You're not the hurting kind...
Don't forget to write me, so I can tell our friends
we've got a new beginning on the road that never ends.

Rambling love child, don't leave me behind...
Rolling 'cross the fields beyond the borderline.
Since you went wild, it ain't been the same 'round here,
I miss your wide-eyed smile
and I sit up nights wishing that you'd reappear.

You know I don't ask a lot, I'm grateful that you made my love light shine;
and in case you miss my face, keep the memory fresh in space and time...

Win the race and claim all your trophies;
Each mile makes you stronger with more future in your hands.
I'll be waiting, I'll keep the home fires burning
- I'll work the fertile land...
I'll go down to the water and I'll think of you some more,
I hope your love can drift to me out on tomorrow's shore...

Rambling love child, don't leave me behind...
Rolling 'cross the fields beyond the borderline.

Since you went wild, it ain't been the same 'round here,
I miss your wide-eyed smile
and I sit up nights wishing that you'd reappear.

Lyrics Submitted by Pat Boardman

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/