Rare Bird

Kelley McRae

I donâ€™t want to take away from you anything that belongs to you
The world wiil do that enough, I donâ€™t need to do it too.
And so Iâ€™ll wait, watch and listen for the wind to blow on through
And until I feel it come my way at you.

You were still so young and when you flew away so high
You were lookinâ€™ for a home and sometimes hoping you would die
And though your wings are achinâ€™ tired, you just want to come on down
Rare birdâ€™s holdinâ€™ out for higher ground

But Iâ€™m about to hear you singinâ€™, itâ€™s a breathless sort of sound
And to catch you in those moments when you think no oneâ€™s around
Well it is clear that it is different, thatâ€™s no secret, thatâ€™s no shame
Sing out itâ€™s how many found their way.

You were still so young and when you flew away so high
You were lookinâ€™ for a home and sometimes hoping you would die
And though your wings are achinâ€™ tired, you just want to come on down
Rare birdâ€™s holdinâ€™ out for higher ground

And the sun sets from a vale, they must be amazinâ€™
And itâ€™s hard to give that up, though weâ€™re trust that you are cravinâ€™
But you wait and watch and listen for the wind to blow on through
And until you feel it come we will love you.

You were still so young and when you flew away so high
You were lookinâ€™ for a home and sometimes hoping you would die
And though your wings are achinâ€™ tired you just want to come on down
Rare birdâ€™s holdinâ€™ out for higher ground

Though your wings are achinâ€™ tired you just want to come on down
Rare birdâ€™s holdinâ€™ out for higher ground
