Tonight

Marc Terenzi

Tonight I don't really feel that well
Cause I'm standing on the corner close to hell
I'm drowning in the sands of broken time
I've drank more than my worth in gold in wine

What is left for me
Paradise is the place I could never be

Take me home tonight
Back where I belong
Before I giving up on my life
And you could make this right
Take my memories away
Of the things I never say

Tomorrow I will wake up my own
I will never feel further from my home
Long ago I knew that I could fly
Now I'm just afraid to touch the sky
What is left for me
Paradise is the place I could never be

Take me home tonight
Back where I belong
Before I giving up on my life
And you could make this right
Take my memories away
Of the things I never say

I feel like all the walls are closing in
If you could just reach out and take me by the hand
With everything you can

Take me home tonight
Back where I belong
Before I giving up on my life
And you could make this right
Take my memories away
Of the things I never say

I know
You could make the right
Take my memories away
And baby, maybe
You could just take me tonight
