Nothing Sacred

Struck by Lightning

Still floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your wombStill floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your wombSince water of the world
I knew I'd have to face you
The color of my bites
Yes they remind me of youIn your blood I write
I am not afraid
This is who I am
And I will never be like you
I do not kneel
All I'm asking
Is nothing sacred anymore?Sailing through the flood
Why did he keep two of you
Splinter in your mind's eye
My phoenix rises to swoopIn your blood I write
I am not afraid
This is who I am
And I will never be like you
I do not kneel
All I'm asking
Is nothing sacred, nothing sacred anymore?Nothing sacred, nothing sacred, nothing sacred
Nothing sacred, nothing sacredStill floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your womb
Still floating in the gray water of your wombTake the edge of my thumbs
Bury the nails deep into your eyes
(Maybe then you'll see my light)
I'd rather crawl, drooling with the beggars
They've got more to sayIn your blood I write
I am not afraid
This is who I am
And I will never be like you
I do not kneel
All I'm asking
Is nothing sacred anymore?In your blood I write
I am not afraid
This is who I am

And I will never be like you
I do not kneel
All I'm asking
Is nothing sacred, nothing sacred anymore?
