

Settled

Passenger

Well it's funny with age you get to the stage your head in your heart down on the same page your heart will wait forever but your skin says you are getting old good things to those who wait but the light were up and it was getting late she wore my coat cause she said she was cold funny how coat turns to a ring looking back now i don't remember a thing we don't talk about the writing on the wall some days we don't talk at all when the lights are dim and my time is free I sometimes i think about the good times i missed sometimes i think about the girls i could have kissed but i settled for her and she settled for me well its funny how time just seems to fly you blink your eyes and it'll pass u by before too long you are getting on the bus for free same old routine same old blue jeans same old nightmares different dreams funny how quick the days turn into years, funny some people stay, some disappear we don't talk about the writing on the wall hell some days we don't talk at all when the lights dim and my time is free sometimes i think about the good times i missed
but i settled for her and she settled for me it's funny how you miss some one you sat next to them at home ain't it funny how hard we are to change like we made of stone we don't talk about the writing on the wall hell some days we don't talk at all when the lights dim and ..when the time is free sometimes i think about the good times i missed
but i settled for her and she settled for me
