

Shallow Water

Demon Hunter

Remember the threat from which is was said
"You will reap every seed that you sow"
And the tomb where you lay is the bed that you made
Be still in the pain that you wrote See now, every sear is a choice you make
Every choice is a vow you take
Take pity upon your fate
You coward Sleepwalk through Heaven's call
No forest for the trees
Unlearn every step you take
It'll bring you to your knees Tread shallow water
Safe from the weight, the burden of sacrifice
Sons and daughters
Pray for the rain, may it redeem their eyes And now we have seen what complacency brings
As the blind are assuming the lead
Dig deep in the hole where you buried your soul
In the river from where it bleeds See now, every sear is a choice you make
Every choice is a vow you take
Take pity upon your fate
You coward Sleepwalk through Heaven's call
No forest for the trees
Unlearn every step you take
It'll bring you to your knees Tread shallow water
Safe from the weight, the burden of sacrifice
Sons and daughters
Pray for the rain, may it redeem their eyes Tread shallow water
Safe from the weight, the burden of sacrifice
Sons and daughters
Pray for the rain, may it redeem their eyes May it redeem their eyes
Take now your eternal stand
Before it pulls you in Tread shallow water
Safe from the weight, the burden of sacrifice
Sons and daughters
Pray for the rain, may it redeem their eyes Tread shallow water
Safe from the weight, the burden of sacrifice
Sons and daughters
Pray for the rain, may it redeem their eyes
