Morning

Amel Larrieux

night passes slow get up moon go, I can't take itmy thoughts weigh me down and I'm prisoner to my blanket'cause I'm thirsting for the brilliance of the glorious return of chorus the morningsleep enter my body I promise this time we won't fight youDream Come and reveal what my mind won't let me feel, I won't deny youbird where have you gone come and sing me your song, I won't chide yousun come and crack open the sky and let your golden light through cause I'm thirsting for the brilliance of the glorious return of chorus the morningfear you're not wanted here hitch a ride with a tear wash away thenlight is what I yearn forif its behind that door, then let me break itchoruslight is what I yearn for
