Yann Tiersen

Do you recognize me
here on this sleeper train and do you feel the painGrowing into the night, Mary and i can feel the taste of your birthday cake remember how it was to hold you into my arms, Mary.It wasnt there the summer lights aroundi wasnt there his hand upon my knees
And were gone
across the sunny streetsAnd were gone
the day you died, Mary and we go faster now together throught the fields
and i can touch your face, Mary.The precious things weve done hidden under my skin i let you sleep a while i leet you sleep a while, Mary.It was there the summer lights around i was there
