

Emergency Landings

The Rocket Summer

I won't die;
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
No, I won't ever die
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
Spirits in the sky
Airplane flying high
Round-trip turned into one way
Above the U.S.A. And then he whispered in my ear,
A resounding, "don't be scared"
But we were crying
He said, "I won't die
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
No, I won't ever die
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
Flight ordinary and then emergency landing
Once occupied right next to me, now an empty seat
Then from O'Hare to JFK
A resounding epiphany in my mind rings
That I won't die,
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
No, I won't ever die
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
And just like that you lose something
And just like that you need something
And just like that you feel something
Just like that I won't die
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
No, I won't ever die
My eyes will open immediately on the other side
