If I Had A Mountain

OK Go

If I had a mountain
I'd push every stone to a cliff
If I had a river
The banks would overflow, the banks would overflow
But a book abandoned by the bed might kill me
The stain from where your wine glass was could bring me to my knees
A book abandoned by the bed might kill me
If I, I don't have youIf I had an ocean
The waves would reach past the shore
If I had a desert
The sand would be whiter than snow, the sand would be whiter than snow
But a book abandoned by the bed might kill me
The stain from where your wine glass was could bring me to my knees
A book abandoned by the bed might kill me
If I, I don't have you
If I, I don't have you'Cause everything that I am is just pieces of you
Every thought that I have, just pieces of you, just pieces of you
Just pieces of you
Just pieces of youBut a book abandoned by the bed might kill me
The stain from where your wine glass was could bring me to my knees
A book abandoned by the bed might kill me
If I, I don't have you
