

Motherless Child (Acoustic)

Clutch

Every last blind pulled when I walk down the street.

The only sound I hear is my tired heartbeat.

Sometimes I feel just like a motherless child. This place once had a name. The people once had faces.

In every town I find it's the same sad situation.

Sometimes I feel just like a country less man. My father tried to break me, my mother she tried to raise,

The county correct me from my wild ways. I once saw figures about a mile off.

So I waited in the woods until they were gone.

Sometimes I feel just like a wandering dog.
